

Waiting Period Following Academic Dismissal

Students who are academically dismissed must wait a minimum of one full academic term before becoming eligible to apply for readmission:

- Dismissal during an 8-week term: The student must wait at least 8 weeks before applying for readmission.
- Dismissal during a 16-week term: The student must wait at least 16 weeks before applying for readmission.

After satisfying the waiting period, the student must meet with the Program Director and complete the required readmission process.

Completion of the waiting period does not guarantee readmission. Readmission is subject to departmental review and approval in accordance with University and program requirements.

Students are encouraged to consult with their Program Director or academic advisor to discuss their academic standing, available support resources, and appropriate steps toward future academic success.

Financial Assistance Information

At Delaware State University, we recognize that education is a long-term investment. While the cost of attendance may require financial planning, the University is committed to supporting students in meeting these expenses. The Office of Financial Aid provides guidance and offers federal, state, and institutional resources to help students achieve their educational goals. Financial aid may include grants, scholarships, loans, and work-study awards.

Except for certain scholarships, most financial aid is awarded based on demonstrated financial need.

Will you be requesting financial assistance to pay for your courses?

Note: Answering this question does not constitute an application for financial aid. Students seeking financial assistance must complete and submit the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA).

All applicants are considered for admission without regard to race, creed, national origin, or health conditions. If admitted, I agree to abide by all University rules and regulations and understand that failure to do so may result in disciplinary action, including suspension. I affirm that all information provided in this application is complete, accurate, and truthful. I understand that providing false or incomplete information may result in denial or withdrawal of admission, or dismissal after enrollment.
